Developing a High Performing Team

Teams drive organizational progress, yet forming and leading high-performance teams is one of the most complex challenges facing any leader. Creating and sustaining an effective team requires an investment of time and energy to make it happen. Teams don’t just happen naturally. Building high performing teams requires an effective team development plan.

Kate joined the Aldrich Group in 2012 as a Healthcare Consultant and serves as the firm’s Healthcare Niche Leader. She is recognized in the healthcare industry as an expert on best practices for practice administration. In her role as CEO for our clients, she is responsible for developing business strategy, including establishing policies, goals, and mission statements. She also closely monitors a practice’s service lines and provides recommendations to increase volume and reduce expenses. Kate works with a variety of organizations including multi-specialty and single specialty clinics and related healthcare providers. She is an adjunct professor at OHSU in the Healthcare MBA program teaching Operating Management and Strategic Planning. Kate has been a Practice Administrator and consultant since 2000. Kate received a Bachelor of Arts in Exercise Science from Willamette University and a Master of Public HealthCare Administration from Portland State University.
